SEWER MATTER COMPROMISED.

After Much Legal Wrangling,
the Rival Interests Get Together.

FIND HAPPY SOLUTION.

Another Special Meeting of the Council Called Off
Last Night.

The City Council, which met Friday night, began the consideration of a proposition from R. E. Cooper and W. T. Cooper to deed to the city their private sewer lines upon certain conditions, the council having annulled the grants made several years ago and ordered the sewerage taken out of Little River. The matter was made a special order for Monday night, at which time a long legal argument was entered into in which Jno. B. Russell and R. E.
Cooper spoke for the private sewer owners and Frank Rives and S. Y.
Trimble for the Hopkinsville Sewerage Co. Nothing was accomplished looking to a settlement of the troublesome question. The original proposition was withdrawn and the grantees asked for a further extension of time in order that they might ascertain the cost of a septic tank, as basis for an application for a franchise, or for a further proposition to the city. The council adjourned after agreeing to meet Wednesday night to hear the report. After a conference between the Sewers Committee and the grantees, Tuesday afternoon a meeting was held between the representatives of the rival sewers interests and a compromise effected, by which the Hopkinsville Sewerage Co. will handle all of the sewerage. There were about 20 users on the four private lines and these will of course all connect with the sanitary system, now that the owners of the lines have made terms.
The lines will remain in the streets
but will not be used, as the contentment of the attorneys in the arguments was that the lines have become public property and cannot be removed or the interests transferred, after all grants have been withdrawn.

The compromise agreement is a most satisfactory solution for all and to none more than the members of the council.

BIG FARM SALES

Three Real Estate Deals Aggregate $78,000.

The Planters Bank and Trust Co.
made another fine real estate sale
this week, selling the Hugh Hammock farm of 278 acres near Casky, at $60 an acre, to Stephen P. Mose-ley, of Trigg county. This is a splendently improved farm and was known
a few years ago as the Winfree place.
The Planters Bank and Trust Co. has recently made two other still larger sales, the Stowe farm for $35,000 and the Kelly place for $27,000. Three deals alone amounted to $78,000, which speaks well for Christian county in a dull year and attests the fact that the real estate branch of this popular bank is in the hands of most capable men. Those with property to sell, or who want to buy either farm lands or town lots should give them an opportunity to show the fine line of bargains on their lists.

Hopkinsville, Thursday Oct. 1.

THE BOARD'S PLAIN DUTY.

Kansas City Editor Outlines Plan For Redesigning Waterworks.

The board of public works has an urgent duty to perform in regard to the city water department, and at the same time an opportunity is afforded to distinguish itself from all its predecessors by adopting a systematic and businesslike policy in the management of the plant.

Although it seems useless to expect the same degree of efficiency under municipal ownership as obtains in private corporation ownership, the members of the board owe it alike to themselves and to the city to approximate the methods of a business corporation as closely as possible in the management of the waterworks.

If the members find it incompatible with the exigencies of their present business affairs to give their personal attention to the work they should at least see to it that the heads of the department are competent business men who will give their whole time to their duties and, above all, that politics shall be entirely eliminated from the water department.

The insubordination, incompetency, jealousies and recriminations which have been shown to exist among the employees, from highest to lowest, present a situation hardly less dangerous and disgraceful than the recent disclosures in regard to the unsafe and inefficient condition of the plant.

The plain duty of the board is first to weed out the incompetents and those who are playing politics and next to reorganize at least the mechanical branches of the department on a strict, nonpartisan, business basis.

The people of this community are tired of the everlasting squabbles and alarms in regard to the water supply that have come to light with each new administration as well as of the constant demands for money to do things which should have been done and were represented falsely to have been done years ago.—Kansas City (Mo.) Journal.

CITIES QUIT BUSINESS.

Municipal Lighting Plants Prove Expensive Luxuries.

The city electric plant of Laurens, S. C., was installed in 1897 at a cost of $30,000. The generating plant has now been shut down, a contract for current having been made with a private company.

In 1905 Pontotoc, Miss., purchased the local electric plant for $8,000. Two years later it sold it for $5,000 because, as the mayor writes, "it didn't pay expenses." Another citizen writes that the sale was due to "dissatisfaction with municipal management."

Portland, Ind., installed an electric plant in 1892 at a cost of $42,000. Six years later the generating plant was shut down, and a contract for current was made with a private company.

The village electric plant of Lockport, Ill., installed at a cost of $20,000, was leased about a year ago to the sanitary district of Chicago for a nominal consideration, as the plant was a failure.

The electric light and water plant of Hickman, Ky., installed by the city at a cost of $30,000, was leased in 1906 to the Hickman Ice and Coal company for a term of twenty years. The mayor assigns as the reason that "the plant was not self sustaining."

Private Companies Better.

All this talk of municipal ownership which has been going the rounds here of late is ill advised, in my opinion. It isn't practical, and every city has found to its cost that poor service has been derived from municipally owned plants than from the corporations owned and run on business principles by private capitalists.

Statistics bear me out in this. You can take 100 towns that have municipally owned lighting plants and you will find all sorts of schedules prevailing—moonlight schedules, dark night schedules and, in fact, everything but a clear schedule for light every night at a stated price, no matter what weather conditions prevail. You can't tell anything about the cost of these plants, and you get poorer service.

The temptation to inject politics into the management of these municipal plants is too strong for the average man to resist, and in most every municipally owned plant you will find it run to the benefit of the ruling party and not to the benefit of the citizens.

The tendency is to employ friends of the management, and all this talk of divorcing the service of the city from politics is hush. As long as human nature remains the same it will not be done, no matter who gets the office.—Hon. W. R. Burnett, Mayor of Springfield, O.

Careless Management.

The auditing department of Elyria, O., has just made a full report of its investigation of the municipal water works. Among the points of interest in this report are the following: Deficit for 1907, $8,000.73; at least 25 per cent of the water pumped not accounted for; important meters allowed to remain out of order for periods varying from one month to two years. The department recommends a 25 per cent increase in the rates and adds the following suggestive paragraph:

"We believe that the board of public service should keep in close touch with the affairs and financial condition of the water department from month to month and require monthly reports from the waterworks superintendent as to amount of water pumped, supplies which probably will be needed during the coming month and statement of supplies on hand, etc."

Listowel, Ont., has voted down a proposition to install a municipal electric plant.

He rose to his feet, mechanically put on a coat that was lying on a chair—Hugh's coat, but he did not notice this—and baredheaded passed out to the street. The motor car stood there. He took his place in the forward seat and threw on the power.

Barking joyously, Rummy, the brown spaniel, tore out of the gate, but his master did not stop. The little creature pursued the moving car, made a frantic leap to gain his seat, but missed, and the huge armored wheel struck and buried him to the woe.

Heavy did not hear the searing roar of pain. His hand was on the lever, pushing it over, over, to its last notch, and the great mechanism, responding with a leap, sped away, faster and faster, through the night.

Chapter 10

FIVE miles through the dark, under the breathless, expectant stars. The car was on the broad curve now where the road bent to the bluff above the river to pass the skeleton railroad bridge. But Harry knew neither place nor time. He was conscious only of motion—swift, swallow-like, irresistible—this and the racing pictures in his brain stenciled on the blur of night that closed around him. These pictures came and went—the last revel of the saints when he was Satan Sanderson, Hugh sneering at his calling. Jessica facing him with unbending eyes, Hallelujah Jones preaching on the street corner.

Something in Harry's brain seemed to snap. A tiny shutter, like that of a camera, fell down. His hands dropped from the steering wheel, and, availing in his seat, he began to sing in a voice made high and uneven by the speed of the car:

"Palm of victory!
Crowns of glory!
Palm of victory I shall wear!"

He sang but the three lines, for suddenly the car left the road, the inflated tires rebounded from the steel

a rocket behind it, plunged heavily over the rim of the bluff into the river. A moment later the deep black waters of "the hole" had closed above the mass of sentient steel. The swift current had smoothed away every trace of the strange monster it had engulfed, and there by the side of the track, huddled against the broken signal post, his clothing plastered with mud and grime, motionless and with a nasty cut on the temple, lay Harry Sanderson.

A long, saturating peace, a deep and drenching darkness, had folded him. Dully at first, at length more insistently and sharply, a rhythmic pulsing sound began to annoy the quiescent. K-track, k-track, k-track—it grew louder; it grew more momentous and material; it irritated the calm that had wrapped the sated universe. As though from an immeasurable distance he heard a low, continuous roar and now and again through the roar nearer voices.

Harry awoke. His mind awoke, but his eyes did not open at once, for the gentle swaying that cradled him was pleasant, and the muffled click and hum soothed him like opium. He opened his eyes. It was daylight. He was lying on dusty boards that rattled and vibrated beneath him, the floor of an empty freight car in motion. A small brown dog, an abject, muddled and shivering morsel, was snuggled close to his side. It whined as if with joy to see his eyes opened, and its stubby tail beat the floor.

Harry turned his head. Two men in dingy garments were seated on the floor a little distance away thumbing a decrepit pack of cards over an empty box. He could see both side faces, one weather beaten and good humored, the other crafty—knights of the road. The sudden movement had sent a momentary twinge to his temple. He put up his hand. It touched a coarse handkerchief that had been bound tightly about it. The corner hung down. It was soiled and stiff with blood. What was he doing there? Where was he? Who was he?

It came to him with a start that he actually for the moment did not know who he was—that he had ridiculously slipped the leash of his identity. He smiled at his predicament. He would lie quietly for a few moments, and it would come. Of course it would come! Yet it did not come, though he lay many moments, the fingers of his mind fumbling for the latch of the closed door. He had waked perfectly well, all save the slight cut on his temple, and that was clearly superficial, a mere scratch. Not a touch of insanity marred his soul. His mind was as clear and light as a larva's. Body and brain together felt as if they had never had a serious ache in the world. But all that had preceded his awakening was gone from him as completely as though it had had no existence.

Stealthily he rose to a sitting posture and, with a frown of haughty perplexity, took a swift and silent inventory. He scanned his clothing. His coat was threadbare and, with mud, oil and coal dust, was in a more disreputable state. His wristbands were grimy, and one cufflink had been torn away. He had no hat.

He brought himself of his pockets and went through them methodically one by one. They yielded several dollars in coin, a penknife and a tiny gold cross, but not a letter, not a scrap of paper, nothing to serve him.

The gleam of a ring on his finger caught his eye. He rubbed away the dirt and carefully examined it, wondering if the stone was real. His hand was slightly cut and swollen, and the circlet would not come off, but by shifting it slightly he could see the white depression made by long wear. The setting was an odd one, formed of the twisted letters H. S. Those naturally should be his initials, but there he stopped. He repeated to himself all the names he could think of, beginning with S, but they told him nothing.

He looked himself over again carefully, reflectively. He put out his hand and laid it on the spaniel's head. Its rough tongue licked his fingers. It held up one fore paw mutely and anxiously. He drew the feverish, dirty little creature into his lap and examined the limp member. It was broken.

"Poor little beggar!" said he under his breath. "So you've been knocked out too!" With his knife he cut a piece from the lining of his coat and with a splinter of wood from the floor he set leg tightly. The dog submitted without a whimper, and when he set it down it lay quietly beside him watching him with affectionate canine solicitude.

"I wonder who we are, you and I?" muttered Harry Sanderson whimsically. "I wonder!"

The players looked around. One of them nodded approvingly. "Right as a trivet!" he said. "I made a pretty good job of that cut of yours. Hurt you much?"

"No," said Harry. "I'm obliged to you for the attention."

"Foolish to walk on a railroad track!" the other went on. "By your looks you've been on the road long enough to know better. We stopped to talk there, and we picked you up, you and your four legged mate. Must have been a bit squiffy, eh?"

He winked and took a flask from his pocket. "Have a hair of the dog that bit you?" he said.

Harry took the flask and, wiping the top on his sleeve, uncorked it. Some-thing in the penetrating odor of the contents seemed to elude through far mental wastes to an intimate, though mysterious, goal. He put it to his lips and drank thirstily.

He drank thirstily.

He drank thirstily.

As the burning liquid scorched his throat a recrudescence of old impulses surged up through the crust of more modern usage. The Harry Sanderson of the new, venturesome, temperate life, of chastened impulses, of rote and rule and reformed habit—the rector of St. James—had been lost on that wild night ride. The man who had awakened in the freight car was the Satan Sanderson of four years before.

He drank thirstily.

Chapter 11

SINCE that tragical wedding day at the white house in the aspens Jessica had passed through a confusion of experiences. She had always lived much in herself, and to her natural reserve her blindness had added. As a result her knowledge both of herself and of life had been superficial. The first bitter shock of her catastrophe seemed to burn up in her the very capacity for further poignant suffering, and she went through the motions of life apathetically.

Change of scene and the declining health of David Stires occupied fortunately much of her waking thoughts. Stops enroute in two minutes; toothache or pain of burn or scald in five minutes; hoarseness, one hour; muscleache, two hours; sore throat, twelve hours—Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, monarch over pain.

After the first few months of travel he failed steadily. His erratic moods were forgotten, his harsh tempers put aside. Hour after hour he lay in his chair, gazing out from the wide sun parlor of the sanitarium on the crest of Smoky mountain, whither their journeying had finally brought them. He had never spoken of Hugh.

In time her fiercer pain had dulled, and her imagination, naturally so importunate, had begun to seize upon her surroundings. In the summer season the sanitarium had few guests, and for this she was thankful. Dr. Brent, its head, rallying her on her paleness, drove her out of doors with good natural severity, and when she was not with David Stires she walked or rode for hours at a time over the mountain trails. Breathing in the crisp air of altitude, her spirits grew more buoyant. She fed the squirrels, listened to the peep chirp of the whistling jacks and the whirring drum of the partridge or set on a hidden elevation which she named "The Knob," facing across the shallow valley to the south.

The knob overlooked a little grassy shelf a few hundred feet below, where stood a miner's cabin, with weed grown gravel heaps near by, in front of which a tree bore the legend painted roughly on a board, "The Little Paymaster Cabin."

Resented Improper Remarks.

The report that Sergt. Brannham, of the Henderson company, made an unprovoked assault on Dr. Herbert Cunningham, of Cadiz, at Golden Pond, knocking him down with a gun, is denied by three eye-witnesses in a letter to the Henderson Journal. They say the young lady involved did not refuse to go with Branham, but had been with him that day. Dr. Cunningham, they allege, had made improper remarks about her in the presence of a number of soldiers, and Brannham went to Cunningham and asked him about the remarks and struck him with his fist, when other soldiers interfered and took him away.

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 609 North 4th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Peruna has become a world-famous I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some who have suffered as I did.
"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have

MRS. TRESSIE NELSON.

headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

"A good friend advised me to use Peru-na and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

There are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon. This kind of it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial.

But by far the greatest number of such cases are amenable to correct
medical treatment.

A vast multitude of women have been relieved from the ailments peculiar to their sex through the use of Peruna as prescribed by Dr. Hartman.

He receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womanhood.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr.
Hartman treats annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the Doctor at all.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will relieve every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every
woman so afflicted to give Peruna a
fair trial.

Mrs. Joseph Lacelle, 124 Bronson St., Ottawa, East, Ontario, Canada, writes:
"I suffered with backache and headache for over nine months and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable, half-dead, half-alive condition."

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year. If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and need be without it."

Mrs. M. Kline, 958 E. 36th St., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio, writes:
"I am enjoying good health since taking your medicine. I had suffered for a good many years previous to taking Peruna, and ever since I can say that I do not know what headache or neuralgia is. I can most assuredly say that any body afflicted with catarrh in any form
can be cured by taking Peruna."

Let us show our appreciation by boosting for the boys and assist them in making their carnival an unequalled success. The Cosmopolitan Shows, who are to furnish the attractions, have 20 big shows, free from any undesirable features. There are two excellent amusement city traveling caravan style. A few years ago the idea would have been laughed at; but the fact is evident by the thousands of columns of newspaper mention all speaking in glowing terms of this mighty monarch of modern times, the more than millions of pleased patrons who have passed delightful hours of recreation at its high class shows. The show tents are all equipped in an excellent manner and the frosts are more attractive than the ordinary carnival companies. #### RINGLING CIRCUS.

World's Greatest Show in Hopkinsville Today.

Ringling Brothers' circus, "the world's greatest," is billed to give two performances in Hopkinsville today. The show was scheduled to arrive here from Paducah at an early hour this morning and the performances will take place in Sharp's field. All who visit the show will have an opportunity of hearing Albert C. Sweet's Military Band, which this year plays the incidental music; and during the hour between the opening of the doors and the start of main show offers a delightful program of operatic and popular music. The band numbers 50 soloists. Mr. Sweet is the champion cornetist of America.

Ringling Brothers' circus numbers this season 1,280 men, women and children, 650 horses, 20 camels, 40 elephants, 12 acres of tents, 40 cages of animals and 85 65-foot railroad cars. The main tent is the largest ever built. In the vast arena are three rings, two stages, a quarter-mile race course and a spacious dome on and in which the various acts are given.

All the world contributes to this circus. Its universal character is indicated by the many nations represented among the performers. Even the Shah of Persia has contributed to the novelty of the bill by releasing from his court entertainers the wonderful Mirza Golem family of acrobats that they might make a tour of America under the Ringling banner. The Mikado of Japan, too, has permitted his imperial troupe of equilibrists to join the same ranks.

The show goes from here to Nashville.

SHOWMAN AND BRIDE

Fear Violence of a Former Sweetheart.

Erin, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Gov. John Robinson, the aged multimillionaire showman, who was married Tuesday at Clarksville, to a young nurse who has been in his employ for four years, remained close in their private car during the stay of Robinson's shows here yesterday.

Gov. Robinson had been advised to do so as a precaution against violence from the woman, Laura Ray, who followed him to Clarksville on Tuesday night and threatened him. A close watch was kept up for the woman from the time of his arrival Wednesday morning until the shows left here last night. Only once during the day were they away from the car, that was about noon when they drove in a tan-colored trap to the show ground.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Hopkinsville Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with aching backs and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people from all over the United States.

Mrs. W. T. Winegar, living on Clarksville street, Elkton, Ky., says: "I am very glad to state that Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of most annoying case of kidney trouble which had resisted doctors' treatment and every remedy that I had given a trial. My health and strength became greatly run down, I had little ambition to perform my household duties. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box and the results of their use were all that I could wish for. Before I had finished the contents of the first box of the remedy, I noticed a decided change for the better in my condition and by the time I had used the second box, I felt like a different woman. I do not hesitate to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement."

Plenty more proof like this from Hopkinsville people. Call at L. A. Johnson & Co.'s drug store and ask what their customers report.

INFERNAL MACHINE

Methods of Russian Anarchists Adopted in Effort to Kill Sanford Hall.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 28.—Detectives in charge of the night rider prosecutions in Western Kentucky and Assistant Postmaster E. E. Bell yesterday opened a suspicious package which was received at the Paducah postoffice two weeks ago addressed to Sanford Hall, the self-confessed night rider, and who turned informer on the band and is a star witness for the State.

The package was found to be an infernal machine of the most deadly variety, containing ten ounces of a gun-cotton mixture, besides dynamite and powder. It was a most ingenious contrivance, the "machine" being ten inches long, and provided with a new file to ignite the matches that were skillfully arranged on the interior.

The detectives who have the infernal machine in their possession say that that had any person pulled off the lid before the package was rendered harmless by being soaked in water the explosion would have been sufficient to have blown him to atoms, besides wrecking the entire front of the Paducah customhouse. In fact, the detectives have no hesitancy in declaring that the purpose of the senders was—besides causing the death of "Informer" Sanford Hall—to destroy the Federal building, in which was held the trial of the Hollowell night rider case, pending the Federal court at Paducah.

The mysterious package has been under the constant surveillance of Postoffice Inspector Morgan Griswold since its receipt at the Paducah postoffice, and has been the cause of much investigation by officials of the Postoffice Department.

The detectives in charge of the case, while claiming to know the identity of the senders of the infernal machine, positively refuse to divulge the names of the parties suspected. They claim also to have other startling evidence of a plot hatched by the night rider organization.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Engagement Extraordinary—Phinney's United States Band, With Eight Opera Singers.

Frederick Phinney, the director of the great band bearing his name, has been selected, over all bands in the United States, to produce the music required in the great open-air musical and historical drama entitled "Philadelphia" which will be given in that city next week. Mr. Phinney will receive for his services $25,000 from the city, with a percentage of all receipts over a certain amount. He has been working on the production for five months, arranging all the details. The celebration will be the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the city of Philadelphia, and the entire city has joined in making it a great event. There will be evenings of pageantry, historical scenes reproduced, music of all the periods, educational and descriptive, with over one thousand costumed performers used. It will rival in magnitude the great Peace Jubilee, given some years ago at Boston. Mr. Phinney's next engagement will be the Texas State Fair, at Dallas, beginning on Oct. 17th. He will carry for this engagement 55 musicians, picked performers from the great body of musicians used at Philadelphia. There will also be Eight (8) Grand Opera Singers with the company. After leaving Philadelphia, this great organization will appear at Washington, Oct. 12th; Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 13th and 14th; Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 15th, and from this point they go direct to Dallas, Tex. Popular prices will prevail here; matinee prices 25c and 35c, night price 50c. Seats may be reserved for the night performance at 75c each, and will be on sale at Anderson & Fowler's. Those who buy tickets from members of the W. O. W. Lodge may have them reserved, by paying the difference. The idea is, first come first served, and at the very low prices of admission, we look for crowded houses at both performances.

More Fires In Calloway.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 28.—Four stories and the postoffice at Crossland, Calloway county, burned Saturday night, causing a loss of $1,000. Will Jackson, J. D. McLeod and O. H. Wilson are the heaviest losers. Fire was incendiary, but not attributed to night riders. Only the Jackson store, where the fire originated, was insured. The big general store of J. T. Turnbow & Co. was the only store left in town.

Two Republican Statesmen Caught With the Goods.

Washington, September 28.—Astounding revelations concerning several prominent workers in the Republican national organization have come to light, and as a result two or three more of the most prominent Taft workers are to be released from further connection with the campaign work.

TAFT'S MANAGER FIRST.

To-day it became generally known that A. I. Vorys, Taft's campaign manager, was disbarred from the practice of law during President Arthur's administration. Court records show that he was disbarred for irregularities in collecting a widow's pension money.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, is another who is, according to rumor, to suffer political decapitation in a short time. His affiliation with the trusts is not denied even by himself and it is stated that he will be asked to step down and out.
